This book shows how manipulation and brainwashing are used in society. The author used his knowledge of the present time of the Cold War to influence the characters and scenarios in the book. It focuses on the brainwashing of a young man and the effects it has on his free will. The limitation of the book is that it is a fictional setting. More research has to be done to provide more insight on the morality and ethics of brainwashing. The book provides the perfect setting for the question of morality and ethics in brainwashing an manipulation.

This article shows the discomfort of the people and the idea of brainwashing. The aim of this is to show the possible brainwashing is everywhere idea. The claim is made that no one can be brainwashed without consent. This will provide me with an argument. The limitation is that it is only on the American ideas, and not a broader sense. The author says that brainwashing is essentially everywhere and also tells of the fear the people have of it. This will provide me with an argument against brainwashing.

Platt, John R. "Against "Autonomous Man"" A Clockwork Orange: Authoritative Text,
This work is against the "Autonomous Man". The author aims to disprove the points made by Skinner in his essay. He claims that there is a free will and that it is not a myth. This is useful to me because it provides a counter argument to my counter argument. The main limitation is that it focuses on one essay. The author needs to be more specific and put more of his own thoughts. This article will help me provide a rebuttal to my argument.

This article talks of fixing the brainwashed. The authors heavily researched the topic and try to discern the idea of brainwashing and the fixing of the brainwashed. It focuses not the demoralization of both. It shows that trying to fix the brainwashed, is essentially brainwashing them. The main limitation is that it only talks of the negative effects of the reprogramming. The authors tell of the different ways brainwashing is used and who by. This article will help my research because it gives me more information on brainwashing and it helps me dig deeper into the moral and ethics of it.

In this work, the author provides an argument against brain washing. The aim is to show the negativity and fear that is caused by brainwashing. The research focuses not he fear of brainwashing and how others are trying to be protected from it. This article is useful to my essay because it provides an argument against brainwashing. The main limitation is that it does not go into much detail, so it does not provide many solid points. The author provides a point on the fear caused by brainwashing and how negatively it is viewed. This article will help my research because it helps come up with an argument against brainwashing and it shows the world wide trepidation that follows it.

This article tells of the incompetence of brainwashing. The aim is to show that brainwashing is not permanent, or guaranteed. Their research focuses on how brainwashing does not change a persons mindset, it just deters them from their true nature. This will help me provide my argument that brainwashing is not a good technique. The limitation is that it does not go into the freedom and ethics of it. The author indicated that brainwashing by negative reinforcement is used too often, and that there are other ways. This article will help me provide a useful point against brainwashing.
